INTRODUCTION

THE Museum in Jaipur was started with a view to bring to light various industrial arts practised by the artisans of the former Jaipur State. The building of the museum was designed in Indo-Persian style. The collections made in an exhibition held in 1883 served as a nucleus for the museum which was lodged in the present building in 1886. This museum was inaugurated by Sir Edward Bradford, the then agent to the Governor-General. The museum came to be known as the Albert Hall in honour of the Prince of Wales, who had laid the foundation stone in the year 1876. The work of building construction was started in the time of Maharaja Ram Singh but the building was completed in the time of Maharaja Madho Singh under the supervision of the famous Engineer Col. Jacob.

The collection originally comprised of the exhibits of educational importance and was based on Economics, History, Science, Culture, Zoology and Arts.

Col. Hendley was the first Hon. Secretary of the museum. His conscientious efforts deserve special admiration. His main object was to make this museum as perfect type of Museum, housing exhibits of foreign and local character for a comparative study of crafts of both local and international importance. Primarily the museum was designed to be an art and industrial museum. Most of the things in the collection of the museum belong to the time of Col. Hendley under whose advice articles were manufactured at the school of Arts, Jaipur. Varieties in Brass work were introduced and new crafts like enamel, damascening, pottery, etc. attracted the attention of the experts abroad and many good specimens were produced.

An attempt has been made here to present before the readers a catalogue of museum exhibits bearing on metal craftsmanship — brass work — chased, embossed, hammered etc. and also fine works like those of enamel, bidri, filigree, damascening etc. This is only the 1st part of the catalogue. The other part of the catalogue shall follow in due course. The author would be failing in his duty if he does not point out here that the present catalogue does not deal with only those exhibits of metal section which are on display but also those which are now consigned to godowns for want of space in craft section.

BRASS WORK :

A short note on various types of metal works lodged in the museum is given below :—

Sacred and domestic utensils in brass and copper are made all over India and are usually of the same pattern as we find represented in the oldest Buddhist sculptures and cave paintings. These metal vessels in a native Indian household have the same place as porcelain, glass and silver do in an European family. Hindus even now use brass vessels and Mohammadans copper. Various types of workmanship such as repoussé, chasing, piercing, hammering and engraving are done on articles like drinking cups, loṭās, cooking pots, lamps, spice-boxes, pāndāns, bells, candelbras, fountains, salvers, caskets, ink-stands idols, bed-chains, all of which are turned out in brass, copper, silver, gold, bronze etc. All articles of household use are made for local consumption in the north of the country at Amritsar, Ambala, Ludhiana, Jalandhar, etc.

Jaipur is famous for its brass work all over the world. Much of fine brass work is still carried on by the artisans but is done in most cases at the request of the local and foreign curio dealers. Jaipur work displays on it Persian patterns. This was probably due to the fact that the Jaipur rulers were closely connected with the Mughal emperors. At Moradabad, tin is soldered on brass, filling the ground portion with a blackened composition of lac. Banaras is famous for the excellence of its cast and sculptured mythological images in brass, copper, gold and silver. In Bengal, places like Burdwan, Chittagong etc. turn out metal work. Nasik, Ahmedabad and Poona in the west, have always been famous for their copper and brass works. Nagpur is distinguished by its traditional forms in brass. Very good brass work is done at Nellore but the work done at Madura and Tanjore in south is superior to all and is also the finest in India.

DAMASCENING WORK :

This is a collective name derived from the place of practice of this art of workmanship — Damascus. Two types of damascening work are on display in the museum. They are Tahinishan and Koft. In Tahinishan or true damascening, gold wire is forced into deep channels cut in steel. In koft work gold wire or even leaf, are only made to adhere to the ground metal by means of slight grooves with filling and polishing. Bundi, Alwar and Udaipur have served as centres for this type of work, which is found executed mostly on weapons.

ENAMELLING WORK :

Sir George Birdwood has described the enamel work of Jaipur as the master art of the world. One type of enamel work is known as champleve. In this work the ground is excavated into little pits or depression for the reception of enamel colours. These colours are oxides of metal and are made to adhere to gold by heat. The outlines are formed by the gold of the plate and the whole piece is carefully polished or burnished by agates after the oxides are fused. The enamel then becomes strong and does not crack and fly off, as in many European examples of art. As the colours for the most part adhere with different degrees of heat they are applied separately and those which melt at the lowest temperature are put on last of all. The Jaipur work is chiefly noted for the fineness and the beauty of its red hues. Sixty years back the artists were all Sikhs. They practised their art, in the first place, at Lahore. There are still artists in Jaipur who make articles of very fine quality. Partapgarh and Nathdwara in Mewar are also centres of this art. Partapgarh is notable only for the work on glass.

BIDRI WORK :

There are four seats of Bidri manufacture. These are Lucknow, Purniah, Bidar and Moorshidabad. The mode of manufacture is very nearly the same at all the places. The manufacture of Bidri work is carried on under a system of division of labour. The different processes are generally performed by three classes of people, viz., the moulder, the carver and the inlayer. The moulder prepares the alloyed metal casts of the vessels and turns them into proper shapes by a lathe. The carver engraves the pattern on the surface of the vessel and the inlayer designs the patterns, inlays the ornament of gold and silver and finally colours and polishes the object. In Bidri the metal ground is a compound of copper, lead and tin, made black on the surface by the use of the solution of amoniac saltpetre, salt and blue vitriol. Then the required pattern is engraved over the article and inlaid with silver. Finally, the ground of the vessels is blackened and its silver ornamentations scoured to the brightest polish.

SILVER WORK :

In Rajasthan, Jaipur and Bikaner are famous for the production of silver objects of domestic use. The designs on the objects are either engraved or embossed. Kashmir in north, Cutch in west, Mysore and Trichinopoly in south are noted centres for the manufacture of silver objects.

Burmah and Kandi in Ceylon have Buddhist motive represented on their objects.

The metal section of the Central Museum, Jaipur, characteristic features of which have been dilated upon in the foregoing pages, is rich in both quality and quantity. A comparative study of the crafts of the same type in a single field leads one to feel how, in the midst of diversity in techniques, unity exists. A dispassionate study of crafts on a collection basis in the museum makes one feel that our present workmanship in certain fields shows a marked deterioration and it is high time that we should make efforts to revive some of the old and forgotten techniques as well as designs and meet the challenge of the critics that even in our popular regime, we are alive to our own responsibilities and are making headway in the field of cottage industries. Let modern craftsmen make use of the artistic crafts preserved and displayed in the museum and steal a march over the past record. Amen !

to bring to their homes the sacred water of the Ganges—Gangājal.

A small quantity of Ganges water is poured into the mouths of the dying by Hindus, as they are supposed to be assured of salvation. The vessel has a large flattened bowl and stands on a small foot. It is sealed at the river with a lead disc.

The largest is a good example; it is engraved with figures arranged in bands as follows. The surface is divided into compartments by conventional cypress trees.

i) (1) Vishṇu and Lakshmī, (2) Hanumān bowing before Rāma, (3) Nandī, the bull, (4) The Liṅgam, (5) Gaṇeśa.

ii) Band — The words Jay Rāma 'Victory to Ram' repeated many times.

iii) Band — Board 1 to 10. The ten incarnations of Viṣṇu.

Gaṇeśa, 12. Śiva from whose head flows the Ganges through the fourth and sixth bands down to the seventh where it spreads out and falls on to a tortoise, in a river representing the sacred stream.

The fifth band, according to Mr. Rivett Carnac represents the holy places in the road round Banaras symbolized by Liṅgam shrines.
